Telk not to me of southern bowers,
Of odors breathed from tropic flowers,
Of spice-trees after rain;
but of all those aweets that freely flow
When Jane's fond breares sirt the low
Green heaped upon the plain.

This morning stood the verdant spears,
All wat with diamond devs—the tears
By night serency shed;
This exening like an ramy stain,
They comber the pacific yield.
With their fast fading dead.

In idlo mood I love to pass
These ruins of the srowded grass;
Or listlessly to lie
Inhaling the delicious scents
Crushed from these downcast verdur
Beneath a sunset sky.

It is a pure delight, which they Who dwell in cities far away From rural scenes so fair, Can oarse know in lighted rooms, Pervaded by exotic blooms— This taste of naturel air!

This air, is softened by the breath,
Exhalsed and wafted from the death
Of barbs than simply littom,
And, searcely noted, like the best
Door friend, with whom this world is blest,
Await the common doom.

Await the common doom—
And leave behind such aweet regret
As in our hearts is living yet,
Though herces pase away;
Talk not to me of southern bowers,
Or odors breathed from tropic flowers,
But of the new mown bay!
